I, Detective Johnathon Earl Tasselberry of Sussex, have been assigned by my superiors to investigate Northeastern High School.

A group which chooses to remain anonymous requested the investigation to discover what makes Northeastern High School so unique. The faculty and students are not to be informed of the inquiry, so I must maintain complete secrecy. My only contact will be Northeastern's Annual Staff, who will then report my findings in the yearbook.

DETECTIVE HIRED

With Sincere Thanks . . .

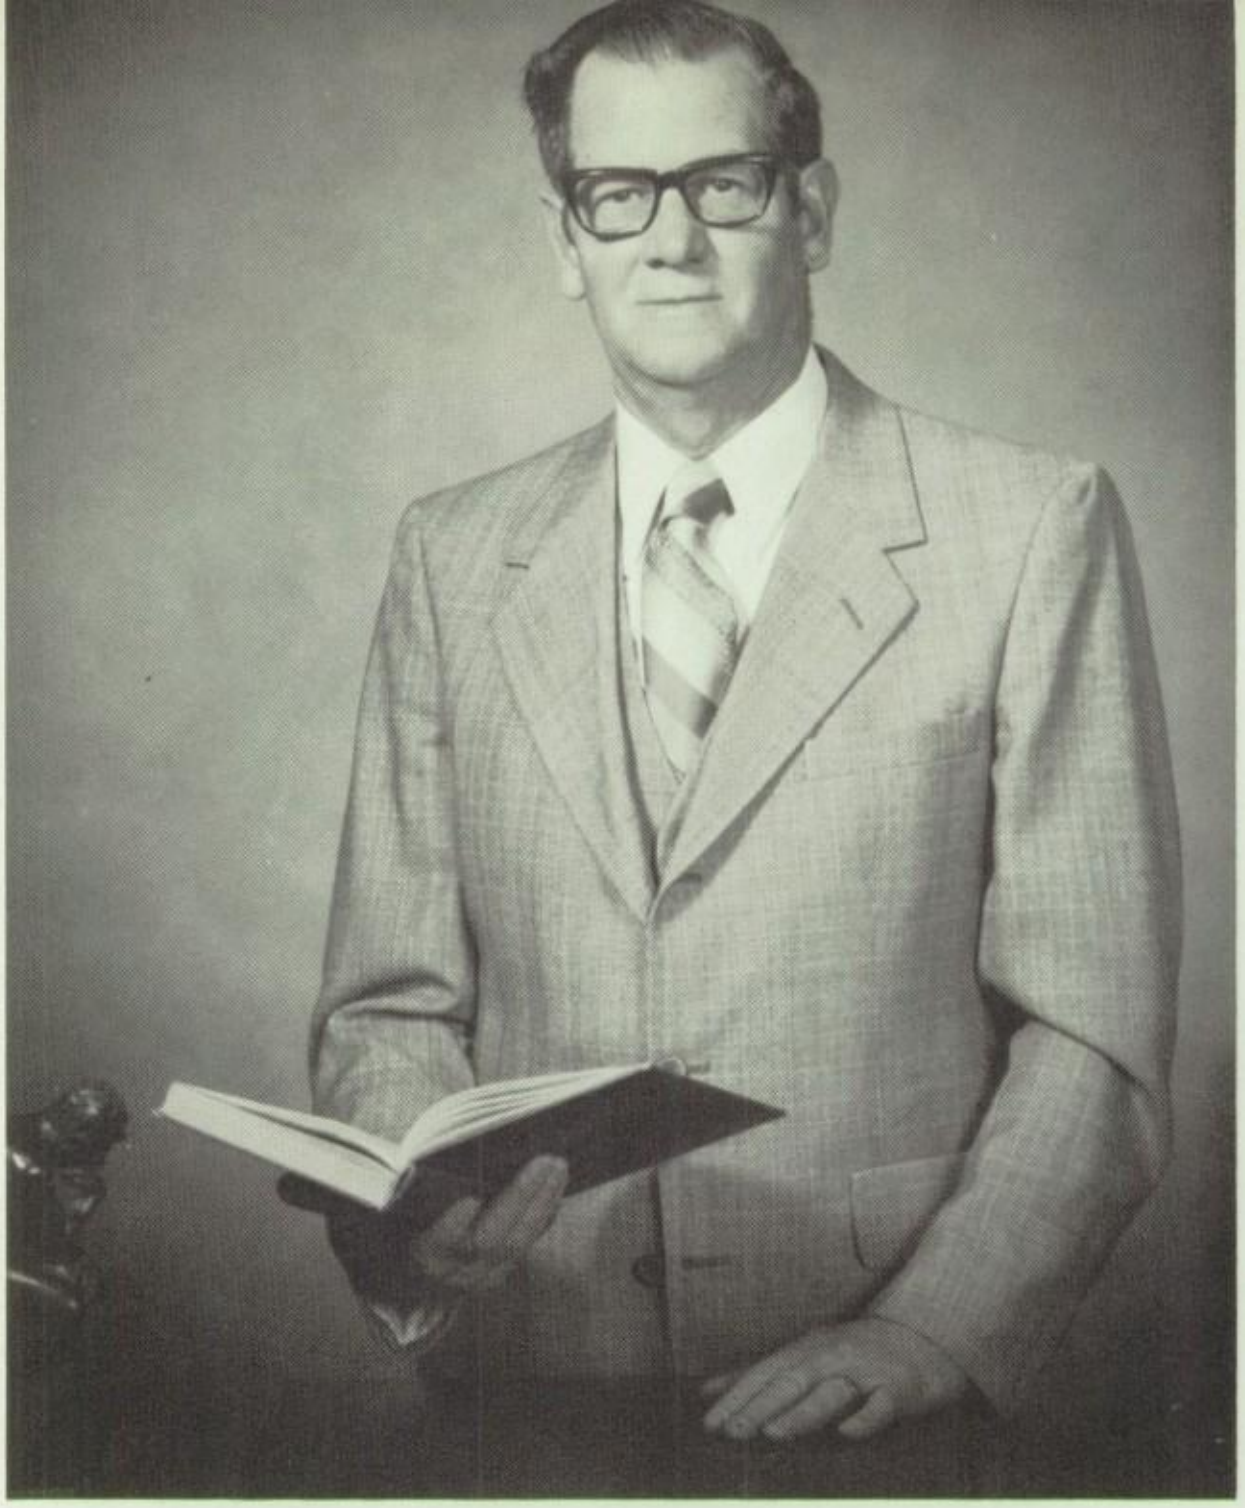
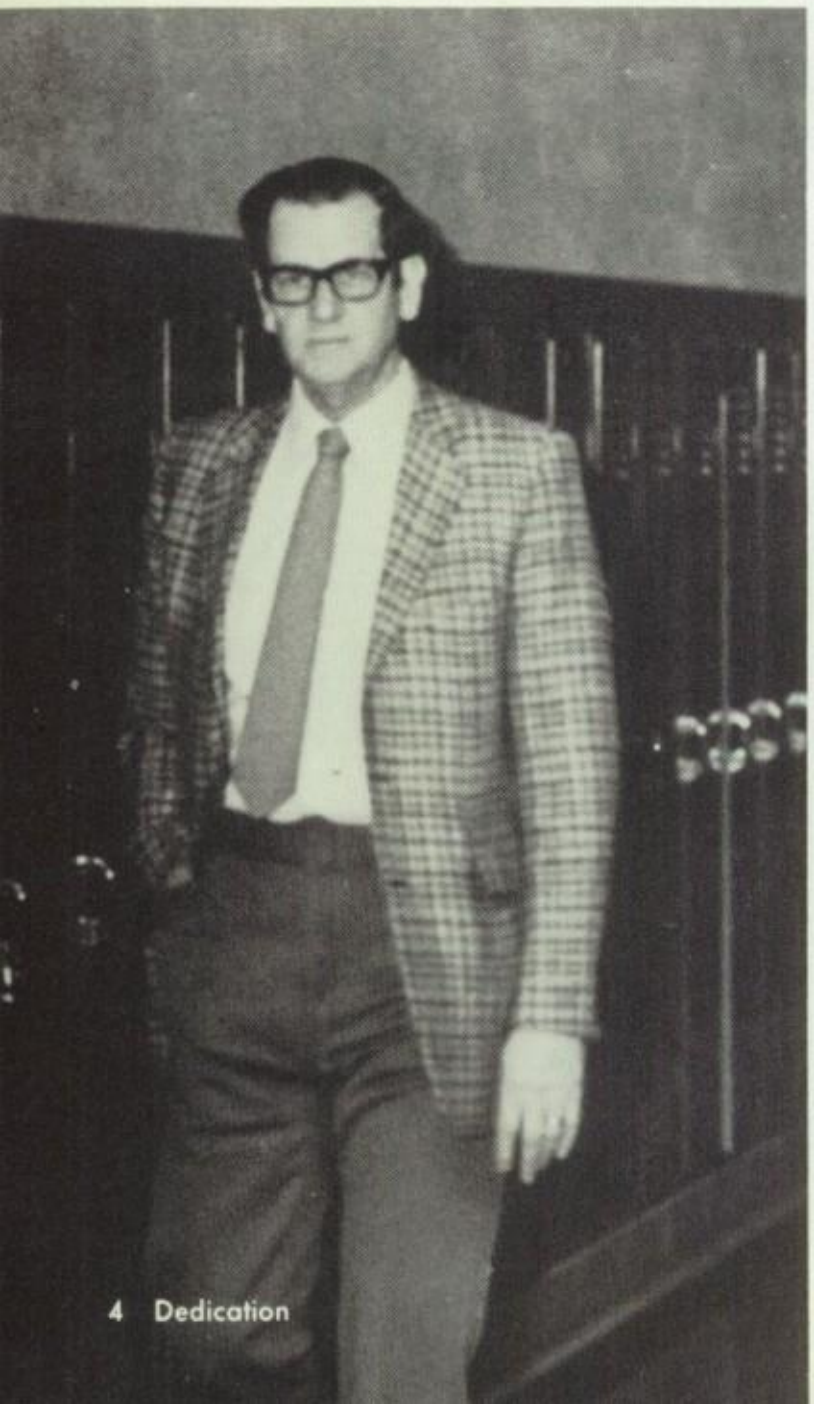
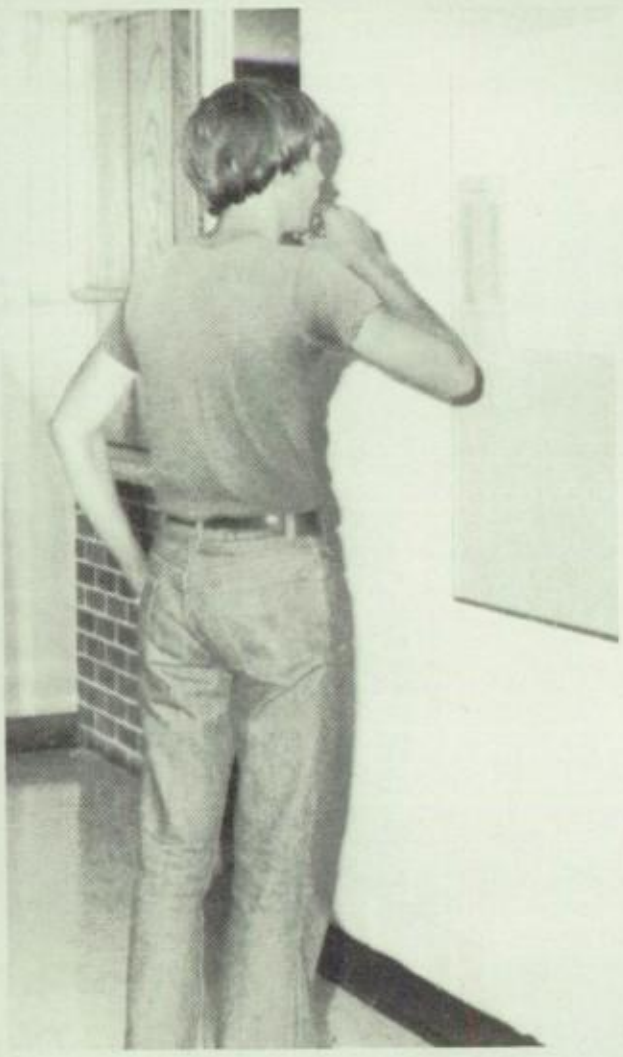
. . . for his twenty-one years of outstanding service to Northeastern High School the Annual Staff is proud to dedicate the 1980 Pilot to Mr. Charles E. Price. His unique understanding of young men and women has distinguished him as a kind and friendly principal. The fairness with which he resolves problems serves as an example to students and faculty alike. Throughout his career Mr. Price has shown continuous support for all of Northeastern's sports and activities. Without his involvement in our schools management, a number of things students take for granted today would not be possible. The 1980 Annual Staff would like to give our sincerest thanks to Mr. Price and wish him well in his retirement.







When school began I carefully watched the students and faculty. The first days were hectic with everyone trying to find their new classes and attempting to work their new locker combinations. Groups of friends talked about summer experiences while others waited in line for lunch wondering what the food would taste like. As the week progressed and things became more normal, I noticed students getting involved in a variety of clubs and sports. All in all the school year started well.

HOME-COMING ACTIVITIES

Students Show Spirit

During one of the pep rallys, a strange thing happened. One minute the student body was cheering, then the next minute students were being called down to the gymnasium floor. Teachers met the pupils and escorted them to chairs in the middle of the floor. They gave each girl a carnation. I made a discreet inquiry and found out the young people were the Homecoming Court and a senior King and Queen would be chosen from the group. The following week was filled with homecoming activities, to get everyone in the proper spirit. I followed through my investigation by attending the football game. The evening began with a parade, led by Varsity "N" 's winning float. The

HOMECOMING DANCE

King Crowned

After watching the excitement build through the week I could not resist going to the Homecoming Dance. On the Saturday evening, dressed in casual attire, I went to the school, where the dance was held in the decorated commons. There was a live band called the Turning Point, which played soft slow melodies and occasionally a faster more lively tune. Students who usually wore blue jeans were dressed in suits and the ladies in dresses or skirts. The couples could have their pictures taken with a

C.C. Captures C.B.C. Crown

October 13, 1979

Since great detectives must always be in perfect shape, I followed the current fad and started jogging. While running by the school I noticed a group of joggers all of whom wore a shirt with a turtle on it. This naturally aroused my curiosity, so one afternoon I bought a similar shirt and quietly jogged up to the back of the group. I discovered the runners were Northeastern's Cross Country Team and that this was the first year for the school to have a girls team. Every member of this team worked hard and it showed. This was the teams first time to be C.B.C. Champions since Northeastern and Kenton Ridge High Schools split. The Cross Country Team had one of the best records of the many sports which are played at Northeastern. The dedication which the runners showed is admirable and also common among Northeastern's sports.

1. Seniors: Jeff Snider, Linda Acton, and Rollie Shoemaker.
2. Chris Shore running against other teams.
3. Betsy Shatto, Dea Neff, and Linda Acton are leaders of this race.
4. Team warming up for C.B.C. meet.
5. David Mowell in first place.
6. Charbe Duncan finishing a race.

Derrick's Achievements

October 13, 1979

While observing the Cross Country Team, I noticed one young man who always seemed to finish ahead of his team mates and competitors. Further inquiry revealed the student's name to be Derrick Murray. Derrick set a new school record of 12:40 for the 2½-mile run at the Ohio Caverns Invitational, which also gave him first place. He also finished in first place for the Northeastern-Kenton Ridge Invitational and in second place for the Tipp City Invitational. Derrick went to the State Meet for the second year in a row and was placed on the West Central Ohio All Star Team. Derrick had a great year but was aggravated by hip problems from mid season on. Many think his full potential was not reached because of his health problem, but even so, Derrick is one of the best. After watching this young athlete, I feel that Derrick is one of the symbols of the spirit and pride which is felt at Northeastern and also the school's ability to achieve the best.

1. Dea Neff going for the finish.
2. David Mowell's expression shows much exertion.
3. Derrick Murray.
4. Derrick taking the lead.
5. Chris Shore runs along a wet course.
6. Derrick poses with his proud mother prior to the State C.C. Meet.
7. After the race, Derrick is helped by an opponent.
8. The team shows fatigue on the ride home.
9. Coach Klopfenstein plans the strategies with Derrick.

MARCHING BAND

Flag Corp Adds New Dimension

Girls wearing long skirts with tucked in blouses over white boots topped with hats holding yellow feathers and carrying large flags seemed to be all over the school. This was too curious a situation for a great detective to ignore so I started investigating and learned the girls were the brand new flag corp for Northeastern Marching Band. An in depth study revealed that during band camp at Rio Grande College the flag corp earned most improved and were voted third place in overall competition. The band marched in the South Vienna Corn Festival Parade in September. The band members

Jet Gridders "Expanded"

October 19, 1979

On Friday the students participated in a pep rally for that night's football game. After watching the enthusiasm of the students and players, I decided to see what it was that caused such excitement and preparation. When I had witnessed a few games I knew the reason.

This year's football team was the largest since Northeastern and Kenton Ridge split. Also players had a lot of respect for their new coach, Doug Heskett.

I discovered the best game the team had played was considered to be against Shawnee High School, one of Northeastern's top competitors. This year's football season was very good even though many of the team's top players were injured. When Northeastern did lose a game it was usually only by one or two points.

Most of the games were played on a muddy field, which was constantly being drained of water. It was not uncommon to see standing water on the field during games or areas covered with sand and straw to soak up water near mid field. Neither rain, nor mud, could dampen the Jets enthusiasm.

Varsity Shows Enthusiasm

October 19, 1979

During the summer a detective friend of mine, who was taking a summer refresher course in Advanced Investigating, called from Ohio State University. He knew of my assignment and reported he had seen Northeastern cheerleaders on campus. I left immediately for Columbus, Ohio. Upon arrival, I disguised myself as a college student and traced the girls. They stayed on the main campus for a week, attending cheerleading camp. The girls seemed quite pleased when they were voted most improved squad.

When Northeastern started school, I noticed this same group of girls seemed to be the center of much activity. Through my investigating abilities I discovered the cheerleaders had planned "spirit week" and a bonfire for the game against Kenton Ridge. I also learned that the girls placed signs, which wished the players good luck, in every football players yard. When the season was finished I went to the Fall Awards Banquet and saw the cheerleaders give each senior team member a scrapbook of the season.

1. Tony Barrett attempts to tackle the opponent.
2. Coach Heskett prepping Garry Paugh for the next play.
3. Tim Johnson making a catch.

October 22, 1979

I am very interested in the Japanese Culture, so when the Japanese Volleyball team came to play the United States Volleyball team at Wright State, I went to watch. After the game, I noticed several girls who looked quite familiar. The next day at school, I spotted the girls from Wright State's volleyball game. I later learned through several reliable sources that the girls were part of Northeastern's Volleyball team. They reported that some of Northeastern's volleyball team had also gone to a tri-match between Cedarville College, Wittenberg University, and Urbana College at Cedarville. In addition, several members of the team had been line judges for the United States Volleyball Association championship games at the University of Dayton. I was further informed that the volleyball team's best game had been played against Northwestern at Northwestern. The fact that these girls were not only good volleyball players, but are also interested enough in the sport that they went to watch other teams play, this seems to represent the prevalent spirit at Northeastern.

Spirit Drives Jet Golfers

October 23, 1979

Every afternoon when school was over a certain group of guys would rush to a section of lockers and withdraw golf clubs. They then would gather in the parking lot until each one managed to get a ride. I was getting very curious about this, so I followed the golfers caravan. We ended up at Reid Park, because this was the nearest location for the group to practice. I later discovered the golfers best showing was at a triangular match with London and Miami East at Reid Park on September 13, in the rain. The Jet Golfers always displayed loads of great team spirit even in the rain. I have also noticed this spirit with other sports and have concluded that this is one of many things which bonds all of Northeastern's sports together.

Netters Gain Experience

October 24, 1979

For quite some time I had noticed several girls disappearing into the restroom after the seventh period bell rang and reappearing a few minutes later in short dresses. I realized the girls were members of the Northeastern Tennis Team and I set out to learn everything I could about them. I discovered the girls had received new team outfits and they practiced everyday after school even in adverse weather conditions. One afternoon, I went to see the team play at Snyder Park. Each player showed good ability and displayed an immense sense of pride in their game. The pride which was evident in the girls is an excellent example of the dignity which is shown at Northeastern.

1. Cathy Hunt shows much anguish as she delivers another perfect serve.
2. Another hard return by varsity player Robbin Stoops.
3. Christy Wren shows much concentration while awaiting for the upcoming serve.
4. Cathy Raymond watches closely for a perfect return.

I had noticed many students were grabbing something to eat just before the end of lunch period. It did not take long to discover the cause of this was an intramural volleyball tournament. The students signed up to play and then their names were drawn to be placed on a team consisting of 7 members. They played during lunch and the team with the best record was the winner for that lunch period. Fourth period winners were — Clarke Falloon, Pam Carroll, Toby Oberly, Janet Rowley, Vincent Frock, Tammy McFarling, and Perry Murphy with a record of 14-1. Fifth period winners were — Shawn Murray, Robin Woodrow, Ted Williams, Mary Kay Parrett, Brian Parrett, Tonya Smedley, and Brian Hensley with a record of 11-1. These two teams then played a championship game with fourth period ending up as the overall winning team.

VARIETY SHOW

"Chorus Line" Draws Raves in Variety '79

When several male members of the faculty had been spotted walking down the halls in mini-skirts and tight tee-shirts, I put my investigating powers to work. Quietly following this group of teachers, I saw them meet a number of senior guys who were also dressed in the same ridiculous manner. Further investigation of this strangely clad group revealed they were to be the chorus line for the Drama Club's Third Annual Variety Show. That weekend posing as an interested parent, I went to see the show which featured comedy acts, musical routines, and Northeastern's first swing choir, "The Jetset." The show was ended on a high note with a production number from the hit musical "Grease," which was choreographed by the football cheerleaders. After the show, the students presented Mrs. Bean and Mr. Bates with gifts of appreciation for directing the show.

1. Suzanne George spreads her wings in a dance routine to the melody of "Rockin Robin."
2. Frank Ballard sings his version of the hit song "The Gambler" as Mr. Barber accompanies him.

Grapplers Gain New Coach

December 15, 1979

I wanted to find out what went on at Northeastern after the final bell rang so one day I stayed after school. While walking through the halls I was almost overrun by a group of young men wearing several layers of clothing. I soon uncovered the truth of the situation, the runners were Northeastern's Wrestling Team and they were jogging to maintain their class weight. Not only did the team receive new uniforms, but also the wrestlers were under the direction of a new coach, Mr. Wasserman. I also learned the team planned many activities together such as having a party and going bowling. Their C.B.C. which was played at Northwestern provided an excellent finish to a good season, as the Jets claimed 3 C.B.C. Champions.

1. Team meets in a huddle to discuss the oncoming match.
2. Tom Lannert attempts to get a take down.

5. Captains Roger Ireland and Randy Callicoat win the toss for the Jets.

Cheering Squad Baffles Fans

December 15, 1980

The walls usually were filled with signs for the various activities. I noticed a sign reading T.O.W.I.Y.C. No one could tell me the meaning of this strange poster. I ran it through my decoder but it blew a fuse. At the point of total exasperation I spotted the same letters on a patch. I soon had picked out six girls with the same patch. An in depth investigation into their lives showed one thing in common. They were all wrestling cheerleaders. I was soon able to learn that the letters stood for "Top Our Wrestlers If You Can." It was also revealed that they had their first pep rally this year and they had a new advisor. The girls put on a skit, made posters and later on in the year I saw another strange sign M.A.T.R.N.I-.N.O. With much more ease than before I came up with the solution, "Matmen Are The Reason Northeastern Is Number One!"

1. Dale McDonald attempts to beat his opponent.
2. Randy Callicoat shows a great deal of spirit before the match.
3. Senior Randy Callicoat attempts to pin his man.
4. Don Judy tries for an escape.
5. The cheerleaders lead spirit as the run through is broken by Randy Callicoat.
6. A Jet Wrestler puts his man in a cradle position.
7. Tom Rowell begins his match.
8. Wrestling cheerleaders shout for a pin.

Band Hears New Beat

JANUARY 11, 1980

After Thanksgiving I had gone shopping at Gold Circle as a part of my normal citizen guise. As I was checking out my purchases, I noticed that all the sackers were wearing Northeastern Band tee-shirts and so were the people behind the concession counter. The next day at school I inquired into this mysterious activity and found that they were students at Northeastern and members of the pep and concert band. Half of their pay went to the band and the students kept the other half. I also learned that the concert band gave a Christmas concert along with one in March and the Spring concert in May, while the pep band played at all the home basketball games. At the end of the year the band went to Kings Island.

Choir Has New Look

JANUARY 30, 1980

I attended Northeastern's Open House and while I was there I heard a group of students sing. This inspired me to do some research. In my study I found that it had been Northeastern's Choir and that they also sang at many other school functions. I learned that there were actually two choirs, the Symphonic Choir and the Swing Choir. They both sang at Community Hospital. The Symphonic Choir is participating in Wittenberg's Choral Festival. The Swing Choir made their own outfits and sang in the Variety Show. Both Choirs sold candy as a money making project, out of which they bought new risers for the school.

Lady Jets Improve in 80

February 18, 1980

A few of my colleagues and I had gone to Duffs Restaurant for a nice meal. While eating dessert, I noticed a large group of girls that looked slightly familiar. On the way out, we casually lingered by the girls. Once outside, we discussed what we had overheard. By adding up all the information we concluded that they were Northeastern's Girls Basketball Team. The fact that there was a Northeastern School Bus in the parking lot helped a little bit, too. The next day at school I obtained a full history of the Girls Basketball Team.

The Varsity squad's best game had been against Triad, where they broke their record for forty-three points in the first half. They also defeated Kenton Ridge for the first time since the schools split.

The Reserve squad won half of their games and their best game was against Shawnee. They also had a new coach, Debbie Runyan, a 1979 Northeastern graduate.

2. Varsity's only senior, Robin Woodrow.
3. Patti Sebastian jumps for the tip.
4. Dea Neff shoots for two.

Lucky member wins Scholarship in 1980.

In February, several students were seen boarding a school bus during first period. I trailed the bus to C.O.S.I. Once there I was able to blend easily into the crowd and discovered what was happening. The students were members of the Science Club on a field trip. M & M's sold during the year helped sponsor a Science Scholarship to a member of the club. The organization had been the host school of the Clark County Science Fair for local high schools in March.

Camera Club

Overhearing students asking others if they had their honor roll picture taken aroused my curiosity so I investigated this facet of Northeastern.

My investigation led to the group known as the camera club. Their primary activity seemed to be taking portrait pictures of all students who made the honor roll. These were then developed by club members in the school darkroom and displayed in the front hall.

Intramurals Involve Many Students During Lunch

During the lunch periods, I heard quite a commotion in the North and South gymnasiums. By peeking through the door window I could distinguish students playing basketball and dodgeball respectively.

There were six Dodgeball teams with ten members each. The overall winning team consisted of all sophomores with a record of five and zero.

There were eighteen teams in the Basketball tournament with four members to a team. The winning team had a record of ten and one.

J.V.S.

To complete my records, I took a count of students and discovered a discrepancy in the school's records. The freshman and sophomore classes were right but the number of upper classmen was much lower than my total. I discovered that in their junior and senior years the students were able to attend Joint Vocational School. At J.V.S. they could take specialized courses along with the regular English and government classes all students are required to have. The students then receive a certificate from J.V.S. and they graduate with their fellow classmates at Northeastern.

Varsity Gains New Spirit

March 7, 1980

I had heard so much about Northeastern's Varsity Basketball team that I decided to attend their first game. They played Catholic Central and won. I followed their progress carefully through a well played season. When the Jets did lose a game it was only by a low number of points. After the Urbana game, the team really started playing excellent ball. Their best games were during the tournament against the favored Graham and Miami East, which Northeastern defeated. The school was proud of the team's achievements at the tournament games and a new spirit was evident in the students.

Jets Go to the Sectionals

March 7, 1980

In March, there was a feeling of excitement and suspense throughout the school. New posters appeared on walls, students were seen carrying hundreds of pennants. An in depth investigation proved me right. The Varsity Basketball team had won two tournament games against favored Graham and highly favored Miami East. Even though all the predictions had been against the Jets, Northeastern had won. It was the first time in ten years the Basketball team had advanced beyond the first round of tournament play. The next game they played was against their arch rival Kenton Ridge for the Sectional championship. Northeastern was defeated, but everyone was pleased that the Jets were sectional runners-up.

BB Spirit Led in All Sizes

March 7, 1980

In one of my daily strolls through Northeastern's halls, I noticed that the cheerleaders were wearing different outfits. After a bit of fancy investigating, I found that this particular group of girls were the Basketball Cheerleaders.

On the Varsity squad I saw that the same girl was always on top of the mounds and during the games the girls made baskets as part of their cheers. The Varsity Cheerleaders led the other basketball cheerleading squads in spirit with pep rallies, skits, and posters. They also gave scrapbooks and corsages to the players.

The Reserve Cheerleaders worked closely with the varsity to create a good cheerleading squad.

The Freshman Cheerleaders performed with new teammates and a new advisor to back the Freshman Basketball team. The freshmen also won the badge contest during Homecoming Week.

Jet Gazette

Newspaper Staff sold into "Slavery."

I had thought it was a normal Tuesday activity period, when I discovered a large group of students and teachers in the gymnasium. Sneaking quietly in the doors I was alarmed to find an auction of people taking place. I immediately found the cause of the disturbance. It was the newspaper staff. They were holding a "slave" sale to make money to finance the paper. Students and teachers alike could bid on the staffers and the highest bidder would have the services of his "slave" for a class period. I soon uncovered the complete story of the newspaper. Their other money-making projects included — selling flowers, obtaining advertisements for the paper, a bake sell and selling 9 issues of the paper at twenty cents each. All of the staffers had black tee-shirts with "Jet Gazette on the Prowl" written in white over the picture of a gnome. Over the summer four students had gone to a week-long workshop at Ohio University while the others went to Ohio State for a day. And at the end of the year the entire staff planned a party.

Drama Plays

One Act plays performed.

Just prior to Christmas vacation I noticed a lot of activity on the stage. I soon learned that the Drama Club was presenting a Christmas play during school called "The Cop and the Anthem." I slipped in that day and watched the play. It was about a bum who finally decides what to do in life and then gets arrested by the neighborhood cop, but all ends well. The play was well done. So when I heard rumors of two more plays to be put on in March, I was determined to be present. The two plays, "Reunion on Gallows Hill" and "The Outcasts of Poker Flat" were one act each. "Reunion on Gallows Hill" was about the souls of girls accused of witchcraft in Old Salem and how they finally were put to rest. "The Outcasts of Poker Flat" was about a group of people thrown out of a town and on their way west were caught in a snowstorm. The plays were directed by Mrs. Luanne Bean and Mr. Mark Bates, and I am happy to say that both plays were very good. # The "Chief" Goes to State

March 15, 1980

While watching the wrestlers, my attention was drawn to the biggest student. Further inquiry revealed his name to be Dale McDonald, better known as "The Chief." I followed his progress with interest as he placed third in the sectionals and won the league. At the districts, he came in second, as the runner-up. This enabled Dale to go to the State at St. John's Arena for the first time. Dale was defeated, as he received a slight injury to his shoulder. The entire school was proud of Dale's accomplishments.

Varsity "N"

Athletes expand concession sales.

At the home basketball games, I saw everyone converge on the commons during intermission. I quickly found the cause — the Varsity "N" was selling pop and popcorn. They also sold refreshments at Girls Basketball games and the Wrestling matches this year for the first time. Varsity "N" constructed the winning float for the Homecoming Parade. The last year's Queen and her escort rode on it. It had movable football players on top and pictures of all sports around the sides.

Sadie "80"

"Newsprint Rash" all Part of "Sadie 80"

In March students were reported to have black spots on their hands and faces. Fearing an epidemic, I called in an expert medical team. When they failed to diagnose the problem, I made a complete search of the school. I quickly connected the phenomena with several huge stacks of newspaper that were being torn in strips by the students on the stage. Although this posed an even more difficult question, through a series of investigations, the truth soon came to light. The students were preparing the newspaper as a floor covering for the Sadie Hawkins Dance. To gather even more information, I dressed as a scarecrow and went to the dance. They had a live band by the name of "Scram" who played many popular songs as well as originals.

Injuries Hamper Jet Netters

April 11, 1980

I had decided that since I was posted in South Vienna for my job, I should see the beautiful sights of the near-by Springfield. Driving through the renowned Snyder Park, I noticed a group of boys playing tennis. I stopped to watch and while doing so, I accidentally overheard them talking. As it turned out, I had chanced upon the Northeastern Boys Tennis Team at practice.

As usual, I checked out the team to see what made them tick. I found that there were three seniors on the team. One of which, John Runyan, had broken two racquets in just one match.

It was also reported that the whole teams overall play had improved greatly. The team was plagued by injuries, which included a broken wrist and badly sprained ankle. Their easiest win was over Southeastern, five to zero and the closest match was against South, which Northeastern won.

Foreign Language Clubs

Clubs make international float together.

At the Homecoming game I was watching the floats as they drove past carrying the king, queen and the court. I was not paying strict attention, but when one passed by with a world globe on top, I knew it was different. My search for the truth led me directly to the foreign languages. Here I learned that the French and Spanish Clubs had gone together to make an international float.

The French Club has an annual Thanksgiving project of taking a large food basket to a needy family in the local area. At Christmas time the club went to the Ohio Masonic Home and sang carols for the residents. On the way home the members stopped at Rax Roast Beef to eat lunch. In April the ninth annual French Banquet was held honoring senior club members.

The Spanish Club held a bake sale to make money for their Christmas party, which was given at the club president's home. At the beginning of the year, nine new members were initiated into the Spanish Club.

National Honor Society

NHS Inducts New Members

One evening, a report came through, saying that there was a large group of people at the school. So I immediately jumped in my car and drove to Northeastern. Once there I quickly deduced the cause. I recognized old members of the National Honor Society carrying cookies into the school. I watched from the back of the gym as the old members of the Society came in. They lit candles and gave speeches. I then saw new members introduced by the old members. The new members were then congratulated by all attending the ceremony. I followed everyone into the commons where a reception was held. Next year's freshmen were given tours by the old members. Later I learned that the National Honor Society also helped with next year's scheduling in May. Two members, Susan Lane and John Titus went to Washington and participated in the presidential classroom for Young Americans. When they returned John and Susan gave a speech and showed slides of the trip to the Kiwanis and Northeastern's history and government classes. There Kiwanis partially sponsored the trip and by selling candy bars the Honor Society provided the remainder of the funds for the trip.

F.T.A.

In April the top detectives that had graduated in my class from the Sherlock Holmes Detective College in London were to have a meeting. Naturally, I was invited so I called to suggest that the Upper Valley Mall would be a nice place for the assembly, because we could get lost in the crowd. While there, I noticed a few girls that I recognized from Northeastern. I trailed them and they ended up at a huge display in the middle of the main hall. A closer look showed that these girls were members of the Future Teachers of America. Their display included objects from Northeastern's Art Department and it showed how the Production Journalism class sets up the Jet Gazette.

Children's Farm Day

Since I am one of the world's best detectives, I knew I should check out the elementary schools that sent students to Northeastern. So, one morning I visited South Vienna. As I walked through the halls, there did not seem to be many students present. Luck was with me and I learned the reason. The students were at Farm Day. It is an annual event where first graders went to a farm and saw the animals.

Hard Work Pays Off

April 22, 1980

The rain seemed to be coming down in sheets, as I drove by Northeastern. As I turned the corner, I saw several students running in the school's yard. I decided to investigate this incident quickly, since it was so strange for people to be running in the rain. The next day all my questions were answered. The students were members of Northeastern's Track Team. I learned that not only had the team practiced in the rain and snow, but also they had participated in meets under those conditions.

The best performance of the boys track team happened when they placed fifth in the sectionals out of fourteen teams.

In the sectional finals, Derrick Murray placed first in the mile run and two mile run, Chris Shore placed third in the mile run and fourth in the two mile run, Roger Adkins placed fourth in the high jump and Dale McDonald placed fourth in the shot put.

All four of these boys went to the Districts later to represent Northeastern High School.

1. The team listens to the instructions given by the coaches on the bus.
2. Dale McDonald strains as he represents Northeastern in the shot put.
3. David Lane struggles over one of the high hurdles.

Student Faculty Senate

S.F.S. hosts Career Day at Northeastern High School

Several of my informants had told me something suspicious was happening. So when a group of adults showed up one morning, I was obsessed with solving the riddle. I followed the group into Northeastern's south gymnasium, where, much to my surprise, booths had been set up. Then, to top it all off, during second, third, and fourth periods students were all over the place. But, due to my great detective abilities, I soon had the situation under control. The Student Senate had arranged for all types of business people to come

Individuals gain recognition at State Convention

While casing the back hallways between the two gymnasiums I could smell a citrus odor. I examined the classrooms and in the Vocational Agriculture room I found boxes that contained three different kinds of fruit. I promptly began an inquiry and learned that the F.F.A. was selling fruit in the community from Florida to make money. I also learned that they were sending many of their members to the State Convention for special awards in different areas of interest.

Prom '80

Always and Forever

Friday, April 25, 1980 had to be a special day. It didn't take a great detective to figure out if the school administrator let dozens of juniors miss classes to go to the Ramada Inn. I saw the handsome couples as they arrived for an evening of elegant splendor amid the theme "Always and Forever." After the traditional photographs, dances, buffet, etc., the time came for the annual crowning of the prom royalty. By vote of the students, Lisa Edwards and Derrick Murry reigned as Queen and King. The memorable evening combined for most couples with dinner at an exclusive restaurant, bowling till dawn, breakfast and picnic the following day. The Bob Gray Orchestra provided the music for the couples as they danced away the evening with that special someone under the glittering stars of the "Always and Forever" theme so carefully developed by the host junior class. It was a wonderful evening that made an old detective like me wish I were young again.

Language Honor Societies

Since it was a beautiful spring day, I decided to go to John Bryan and commune with nature. But once there, I saw a large group of people enjoying a picnic. I recognized several of them as Northeastern students and decided to investigate this spring phenomenon. As usual, my great detective abilities enabled me to solve the puzzle rather quickly.

In the fall, the French Club and Honor Society were having their annual picnic. I also learned that the French Honor Society induced three new members this year.

In the spring, I had seen the Spanish Club and Honor Society holding their yearly picnic. In addition I discovered that the Spanish Honor Society had inducted seven new members in a candle light ceremony, with a reception afterwards.

Scholarship Team

One morning a list of 15 people's names were called and they were told to report to the gymnasium. So I hot-footed it over there as fast as I could and hid behind the stage curtain. Soon all the students were present along with a guidance counselor. The counselor explained that these students had been picked by their teachers to take a test on a certain subject. It was the first time that Northeastern had participated in the Ohio Tests of Scholastic Achievement. The students were to go the Urbana College and take the tests, competing against schools from the local area. Northeastern did very well with five students placing in district competition and two receiving state honors.

Ready, Willing and Able

April 30, 1980

Driving through the school parking lot, I noticed a group of students in gold and maroon outfits. At first, I thought it was just the Baseball team, but I soon recognized that the students were girls.

After putting the word out, my questions were soon answered through the grapevine. The girls were members of Northeastern's Softball Team.

The girl's exceptionally good season was highlighted by a victory over Graham at the Sectional Tournament.

At the Sectional Finals, Northeastern barely lost to Shawnee by one run. Then one week later, Northeastern was beating the same Shawnee team so badly, that the game was called off. The Softball team was small with only fifteen members, but they played well. Throughout the season, the girls played many rescheduled games, due to rainy weather.

Art Festival, Success in 80

On May 16, 1980 it became obvious that something special was going to take place in the gym as P.E. classes were moved or cancelled and everyone was busy working in the gym. That evening I put on my best suit and attended what is known as the Spring Art Festival.

The works of art reflecting a year of work by the art and industrial art students was on display throughout the gym. I was impressed by the quality of the objects that ranged from simple clay formations to detailed oil paintings on canvas. It was obvious that much talent was present in this place called Northeastern High School.

Annual Staff

Annual Staffers on top of things in 1980.

Since all of my findings were to be recorded in the 1980 Pilot, I though it best to check the members of the Annual Staff out first. It was difficult to turn up things about the Staff without anyone becoming suspicious, but, as usual, I handled everything very well.

One of the first things I learned written in a new style — chronological order. I also learned that two new editors had been added to the Staff — a copy editor and an index editor.

In the summer, the managing and the activity editors attended a Yearbook Workshop at Moorehead University. During the week's activities, Janet Rowley placed first for her theme and Sherry Hutchins won third place for copy writing.

The Staffers worked hard not only on the yearbook, but also a float which was entered in the Homecoming Parade and received second place. Also in the fall, I noticed Annual Staff members wearing buttons with A.S.K. written on them. Of course I did "ask" and was told the letters stood for "Annual Staff Klan" and they were selling yearbooks.

When the fall and spring sales of yearbooks were completed, the total amount sold came to over four hundred copies. The Staff also set a record in Advertising sales this year.

Drama Club

New Curtains Dedicated.

After seeing the Drama Clubs first play I knew I had to attend the big spring play. When try outs were completed, they started practicing every night. The new Cyclorama Curtain was dedicated at this play and the new lights were used. Although the play was performed on Friday and Saturday nights, my busy schedule permitted me to attend only on Saturday.

The play "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," was about a young man who, while unconscious, visits Arthur's Court. Once there he tries to put the

JET Runners Have "Trials"

May 10, 1980

Once I had discovered the Boys Track Team, it did not take me long to find the Girls Track Team. After closely observing the girl's coach I knew all the important facts. The team went to three invitationals, where they proudly represented Northeastern High School.

The race for "most valuable runner" was very close between four different girls. Like the boys, the girls too, ran in adverse weather conditions and after dark. The coaches were complementary on the great camaraderie between the girls and boys teams.

After a great showing at the sectionals the bus stopped at McDonalds to celebrate. At the end of the season, a party was given by Coach Klopfenstein at his house for both teams.

It is my feeling that the students on both track teams are dedicated, young athletes and Northeastern should be very proud of them.

Grub Day

I was walking through the library, when I noticed that the senior's homerooms were empty. For once my brilliant mind was stumped. Who would want to kidnap Northeastern's senior class? I went to my car and put out the word over the CB radio. I finally got a call about a large group of people at Perkins Pancake House in town. I decided to take a chance, so I drove to the restaurant. Perkins was packed with kids dressed in really strange outfits. I got a table close to one of the groups and listened in on their conversation. As I had guessed, these were Northeastern seniors and they were wearing costumes because it was Grub Day. The costumes ranged from guys dressed as girls, to old ladies on roller skates, to a gorilla. After breakfast, the seniors returned to school with doughnuts for the faculty.

I was walking down the hall by the sciences when I saw several girls in fancy dresses heading toward the home economics room. I very quietly followed the girls into the room. # Spirit Leads Baseball

One afternoon, I was late leaving school. When I started to get into my car, I was attacked by a ball from behind. Fearing that it was my old arch enemy, I immediately jumped into the car. But, when I turned to face my assailant there was only a group of guys in baseball uniforms. That was how I discovered Northeastern's baseball team.

The next day, I casually posted myself by the coaches office to get the full story. The team's most exciting game was against Kenton Ridge. Northeastern won the game, thereby knocking Kenton Ridge out of the running for the League Championship. Through the season, the team set a record by turning eight double plays.

The Reserve Baseball team had eleven players, most of which were freshmen. Their best game was against Shawnee, which Northeastern won. The Reserve team gave younger players experience.

1. 1st Team C.B.C. Catcher, Bryan Hensley, awaits the call by the umpire.
2. Concerned coaches look on with confidence.
3. John Cook, first baseman, gets ready to tag a Chieftan out at first base.

O.W.E.

There was much discussion around the halls about "the new course" and "the course where you work." This was too much a mystery for the great detective to overlook.

Careful investigation revealed a new work-study unit called occupations work experience (O.W.E.) was started and its basic idea was regular classes all morning and on job training the rest of the day. The student obviously liked the program as they worked in a wide variety of jobs.

1. Wendy Blair sends two daredevils down "The Serpent" at Beaver Valley Recreation.
2. Juanita Hebel prepares food at the Taco Bell.
3. Kim Gibson practices typing skills as she prepares job applications.
4. Unpacking merchandise is one of Hiram Thurston's jobs at Springfield Television and Audio.

Assemblies

Everything had been running very smoothly, when I saw two grown men made-up as clowns. My first thoughts were that they had escaped from the circus. But later that day, everyone was called into the gymnasium.

Once there, the two clowns gave a show which delighted the audience. Afterwards, they visited several classrooms and I had a chance to learn more about them. Their names were John Towsen and Fred Yockers and their show was sponsored by the Springfield Arts Council.

Before leaving, they made several students up as clowns and gave the newspaper an interview.

1. John and Fred demonstrate the hat trick.
2. Garry Paugh shows how clowning is started.
3. Fred likes clowning around with the student body.
4. Clowns seem to get a real kick out of their work.

The Instructors

After studying the faculty I have decided that they make up an important part of Northeastern High School. In addition to their duties as instructors many are advisors for clubs or participate in other extracurricular activities. They give students help and guidance that is needed to complete a good education. Their friendliness and leadership give the students fond memories of high school and bring many students back to see their favorite teachers after graduation.

The Graduates

It was easy to distinguish the graduates, they set a mood for all the students. After eleven years of school they were on top, the seniors were first in the lunch lines and at all assemblies. In the spring they had Grub Day, where everyone dressed outrageously and came in late after a senior breakfast at Perkins Pancake House. Seniors set an example for the school and these seniors did a good job.

Retiring principal, Mr. Charles Price, joins the 1980 graduating class by receiving his honorary diploma.

The sixteenth of May turned t to be the seniors last day. ut much to my surprise, the fol- wing Monday, they all turned. My constantly curious nd questioned this event. By refully blending myself into e red seats in the North Gym- sium, I was able to discover e reason for the meeting. The niors had returned for Com- encement practice. After- rds, I knew I had to attend the al commencement that Friday. I came promptly at eight, hen the ceremony was to begin. The gymnasium was filled with people and decorated with flowers. The Reverend Paul Netzly gave the invocation and benediction. Superintendent, Mr. Charles Stevens, and Board members, Mr. Reed Jewett and Mr. Don Titus handed out the diplomas. Mr. Carl Frazier, Assistant Superintendent, did the introductions. Dr. Ann Mauter addressed the graduating class and the school's band and choir performed the music. Mr. Price recognized the scholarship winners and the nine honor graduates. He also was awarded an honorary diploma which made him the 3,900 graduate from Northeastern.

When the formalities were over, the seniors threw their hats in the air and marched out of the gym. The new alumni were warmly greeted in the hallway by friends and relatives.

It was a beautiful ceremony and like the speaker said, this was not the end, but only the beginning.

The Populace

After months of exhaustive research and trying to categorize the populace I have concluded that each class is very special having their own personality. The juniors major concern is raising money for the prom and wondering who will be accepted into the National Honor Society. The sophomores proudly display their class rings which they ordered in September. And the freshmen have their first year of high school, which includes many adjustments along with making new friends.

Classified

After sitting in on a few Annual Staff meetings, I began to wonder where they were obtaining money to pay for the yearbook. A careful inquiry soon revealed that the businesses of the surrounding areas bought advertisements in the yearbook. The money from these advertisements was used to help pay for the yearbook. I noticed these same companies supported many other of Northeastern's activities. The support from these businesses seemed to be appreciated by the whole student body.

As the end of the school year drew nearer everyone seemed to be excited, happy and a bit remorseful. The days were filled with activities such as cleaning lockers, going outside at lunch, club picnics and studying for exams. While the freshmen, sophomores and juniors looked forward to advancing another year. The seniors were ecstatic about graduating, but also wondered what had happened to the twelve years.

In my overall conclusion of Northeastern, I feel what makes the school so unique from other schools is the people at Northeastern. The faculty and students constantly strive to better their school in all aspects from extracurricular activities to classroom work. It is their pride and dedication in participating which makes Northeastern High School the truly great school it is.

From the Homecoming Dance, to club picnics to athletes participating in tournament competitions, the students involvement is recorded by Johnathon Earl Tasselberry of Sussex. Through the character of the 1980 "J.E.T.S." it is our hope to portray and present the many different aspects involved that make Northeastern High School the unique place it is.

As Managing Editor of the 1980 PILOT, I would like to express my sincerest appreciation to the section editors and staff members. For the many hours of unrecognized time spent in the production of the Pilot by attending workshops, getting information, and creating layouts.

Many emotions are felt when compiling the yearbook from dedication to getting the job done even when everything seems to be falling apart, frustrations when things cannot be done and relief when your section is finished. But the most immense feeling is personal satisfaction in what you have created.

To those who have made the creation possible I again Thank You.

Janet Rowley
